

Lessons & Observations from Acts 22

---

1. We need to speak where people can understand us.
2. Recounting one's obedience to Christ may teach, help, and encourage others.
3. Some places will not receive the truth.
4. The world often makes false allegations against God's children.
5. Citizenship in a great land is important—but citizenship in the kingdom of God is more valuable than all earthly citizenships.
6. May we teach according to the "perfect manner" of the gospel.
7. In God's will there are "things which are appointed for you to do." Acts 22:10
8. To whom will the Lord send you? Acts 22:21
9. May there be a faithful Ananias for every lost Saul and soul.
10. The Lord will stand by the side of His faithful Christians.
11. Sincere motives do not justify any particular action.
12. If an audience feels a common bond with the speaker, they will be more likely to listen to him.
13. Sound reasoning is good . . . but do not leave out the Scriptures.
14. No matter how we present the message of God, not everyone will accept it.
15. We must faithfully and responsibly present the Good News and leave the results to God.
16. Often there are increased opportunities to teach others, even in face of opposition.
17. If someone around us says, "I didn't know you were a Christian," then we have failed to represent Christ as we should.
18. The Lord has a will for His people.
19. Many all around us need to arise and be baptized, and wash away their sins. Acts 22:16
20. Even when one is bound, the truth in his heart is still free.
