→ “That instrumental music was not practiced by primitive Christians, but was an aid to devotion of later times, is evident from church history. The organ was first introduced into the church by Marianus Sanatus, in the year 920; and the first that we know in the West was one sent to Pepin by Constantine Copromymus about the middle of the eighth century.”

→ “In the Greek church the organ never came into use, but after the eighth century it became common in the Latin church, not however without opposition from the side of the Monks . . . The reformed church discarded it, and though the church of basis very early introduced it, it was in other places admitted only sparingly and after long hesitation.”
